News Digest: Penn State and the COVID-19 Crisis

You will receive an email on Friday afternoons summarizing key updates involving Penn State and the COVID-19 crisis. Please review each weekly news digest on receipt and forward it to colleagues to keep them informed of recent developments.

- Undergraduate and graduate students university-wide can request “alternative grading” this semester on a course-by-course basis. Penn State Law in University Park and Dickinson Law in Carlisle also announced alternative grading options.

- Faculty and student use of Zoom is now “camera optional,” and we’re taking security measures to prevent individuals who shouldn’t be there from logging into classes’ Zoom sessions. Guidance and FAQs for Penn State faculty and students about remote teaching and learning are being updated regularly.

- For tenure-line faculty in their probationary period in Spring 2020, Penn State has issued guidance regarding a one-year extension due to COVID-19.

- Prospective students still can apply to the University Park campus through Monday, May 1, and to Commonwealth Campuses through Friday, July 31. Applications are being processed on a rolling basis as usual.

- We are encouraging new students to accept their admission offers by Monday, May 1, and to begin their transition activities. However, students needing additional time may go to their MyPennState portals to get an extension to Monday, June 1.

- The time frame to complete the 2019-2020 performance management cycle (end-of-year reviews) has been pushed back to Friday, May 1, through Friday, July 31.

- Efforts are underway to provide prorated refunds of room and board payments to students who have on-campus Housing and Food Service (HFS) contracts.

- Free virtual screenings for COVID-19 are now available Penn State Health OnDemand, a telehealth service. A Centre County COVID-19 drive-through test collection site also is available for Mount Nittany Health and Penn State Health patients.

- The Graduate School will host a virtual town hall on Thursday, April 9.
• The Penn State Alumni Trustee Election will begin on Friday, April 10.
